I think you're a bludger!

I'm a busy man...
I'm over committed!

Where were you last week Coombs?

..so I said.. what d'you do
for fun down here...

Hey Stoney... you said
you never have a bench!

Could I be bothered?
10 minutes to go..
20 goals down....

If you turned on breakfasts like this I'd turn up every Saturday!

WESLEY ? CAULFIELD ? Who really cares?

GOALS: Hawkins, Garner, etc

BEST: Everybody wot turned up

INJURIES: Keys (abrasians & frostbite)

RUN OF THE DAY: Browning

GOAL OF THE DAY: Hawkins

SEEN & NOTED: Kourosch offering to fill 3 of 4 midfeild roles... Max attempting a reverse overhead scissor kick...The Lions' mobile defensive wall... everybody wanting to borrow Gordo's glove (or his mum's mittens)... Buddy

James Browning is a man with a mission!

Whilst AFL coaches and players struggled to come to terms with new interchange regulations at the weekend, Wesley and Caulfield took the metaphorical bit between their teeth and virtually re-wrote the APS rule book. In a bold and radical venture the teams introduced a number of startling innovations designed to circumvent a predictable one sided contest.

Draft concessions were granted to the lower ranking team at the outset of the game and the Lions chose well from a pool of opposition players. The opportunity to trade players at each interval added further interest to the match and broke down the traditional "us" vs "them" barriers. Memories of the notorious 2007 clash that ended so acrimoniously were quickly forgotten as umpires and players of both teams entered into the spirit of friendly rivalry. By 3/4 time Caulfield players were queuing up to join the Lions' ranks
