2013 / 2014

That Was The Season That Was

The 2014 season may have been brief, but it was jam packed full of incident and exciting performances. Several thrilling victories, lusty hitting, destructive bowling and a long list of PBs made for a memorable few months.

Christian Middleton continued to provide valuable leadership and acquitted himself well with the bat and the keeping gloves. Ryan Barnaby began the season promisingly as an opening batsman, but it was Nihal Nagra who became our batting "rock" at second drop with a succession of solid knocks. He was well supported by James Ali-Akil whose "bat-on-ball" philosophy kept the scoreboard ticking. Tony Kennedy was our "Big Show" this year and Lion fans were delighted by his powerful lofted drives. The most significant batting partnership developed at Haileybury, as Bede McCartney-Kemp and Ging Yeatman steered us to victory from a most precarious position. Small contributions from other batsmen were always welcomed, but most seemed to save their best batting for the nets!

This year's stand-out bowler was Bede, whose devastatingly accurate bowling against Melbourne Grammar netted him a bag of five including a hat-trick. Hugh Johnson put the fear of god into opposition batsmen, but his GPS sometimes let him down. Dylan Simadri and Josh Olver produced tidy spells and captured useful wickets, whilst Ali-Akil, Nagra, Barnaby and Paul Kardis each had days when the ball served them well.

Will Egan-Griffiths was, as always, a lively contributor in all departments of the game, whilst Mike Pradolin demonstrated an extraordinary talent for ball preservation. Alex Reeves proved himself a great asset as a negotiator and outfield sweeper but Lew Kalpokas was forced into early retirement by "pressure of work". Matt Coombs provided much on-field entertainment and was rewarded with wickets in the final round, even if a match day catch continued to elude him.

Credit is due to the boys for working their way through a rough patch mid season and successfully refocusing. Thanks go to each of them for maintaining the appropriate level of enthusiasm and team spirit. Support from parents and friends – moral, practical and edible - was also appreciated.

SEEN & NOTED

The excursion to the farm made uncomfortable by the pesky flies
 The skipper sensibly choosing the batting option first up
 The openers laying a solid foundation
 Barno repeatedly slathering the ball through the cover region
 Wegan suffering from the after effects of too much beach cricket
 Middo striking the ball sweetly over the ropes
 Kenno charging the bowler prior to delivery
 Coombsy distracting the GW fieldsmen with his alluring wet T-shirt look
 The GW spinner capturing a swarm of SKR flies in his web
 A disappointing capitulation leaves us with the bare three figures to defend
 The skipper bravely taking the gloves in the absence of the Gingsta
 The gasps of horror as a first ball skier slips through Barno's grasp
 Bede's impressive opening spell netting two early wickets
 Barno bouncing back with some tidy slow mediums
 The big Dim Sim finding the edge and Middo doing the rest - very sharp!
 GW batsman losing sight of an Akil satellite as it re-entered the atmosphere
 Paul "Tardis" Kardis emerging from another dimension to slay an alien
 A game that was slowly slipping away edges back within our reach
 Pressure mounts, Prads takes a catch and the GW tail fizzles out
 Quiches and watermelon all round! Yay team!

Barno set us up with an enterprising innings

Take that!

...and that!

HOIK!

SEEN & NOTED

An early shower dampening the ground but not our enthusiasm
 Wegan tossing the coin in the absence of the sleep-deprived skipper
 Carey opens needing a “new cherry” picker to reach Johnno’s lifters
 Bede the Beatle charging down the hill to gather momentum and impetus
 Wegan taking a specky in the gully trap from a King Tutankardis edge
 Reevesy rounding up stray poodles and free range sheep in the outfield
 Dylan “Scimitar” Simadri striking a couple of killer blows
 Kenno using his inbuilt radar device to track the flight of a Carey skier
 Josh Olver impressing with a tidy wicket taking spell on debut
 The Arkilator’s high flying spinners endangering the Alfred’s chopper
 Barno overcoming early nerves to construct another valuable innings
 Johnno striking the ball with ferocity before falling to a catch by sub Olver
 Nihal spicing up our innings with some hot hitting
 Wegan mixing some text book batting with some audacious swipes
 “Twinkle Toes” Middleton distracting the bowlers with a soft shoe shuffle
 The deceptively heavy outfield not always providing value for money
 Tony “In the V” Kennedy’s controlled batting reaping rewards
 The communication breakdown that led to Sim falling on his scimitar
 Prads protecting his delicate body from the invisible ultra violet rays
 Coombsy rearranging the woodwork...tsk...tsk
 A comfortable victory with overs to spare...

Bede "Beatle" McCartney

SEEN & NOTED

An uninterrupted afternoon of see-sawing cricket despite threatening clouds
 Wegan busy auditioning for "Bathroom Blitz", the latest Reality TV show
 Bede and Hughie effecting early breakthroughs with dangerous bowling
 Bede following up with a sensational HAT TRICK!!!
 The leg stump at the Southern end taking a serious beating
 Prads and Kenno almost snaffling sharp one handed catches
 Alex copping some stick when the pitch refused to respond to his efforts
 Tidy keeping by the Skipper and part time gloveman Nihal
 Coombsy nervously waiting under an outfield skier - Why me???
 Arks netting wickets with some good length indippers
 Lions failing to push home their early psychological advantage
 Melbourne's batsmen taking maximum advantage of the short boundaries
 Tight, fastish bowling by Dicko and Co breaking our top order apart
 Barno unlucky to be awarded the only LB of the afternoon
 Nihal digging in for a solid, well constructed innings
 Middo failing to adapt to the gently paced pitch and the constant banter
 Sim once again finding himself short of the crease attempting a quick single Arks revealing hidden batting talent - playing each ball on its merits
 Kenno surprising everybody (including himself) with successive sixers!
 Interesting inter school discussions on a diverse range of topics...
 Unwise advice from the boundary prompting some reckless batting

Nihal the Strokemaker struts his stuff

Watch out Stone! You're in the firing line

Awad made a guest appearance early in the season and wasted no time in cutting loose

Absolutely the best thing about cricket is going the tonk. I've watched Luther and his buddies blocking and poking and it's so send-you-to-sleep boring! Loosen up boys... enjoy yourselves! Take the game up to the bowler! Life's too short to wait for the bad ball. Most of my team mates agree... although a few of them do their best tonking in the nets... eh Hughy?

Interesting footwork by Wegan. Very creative

The Bedester unwinds

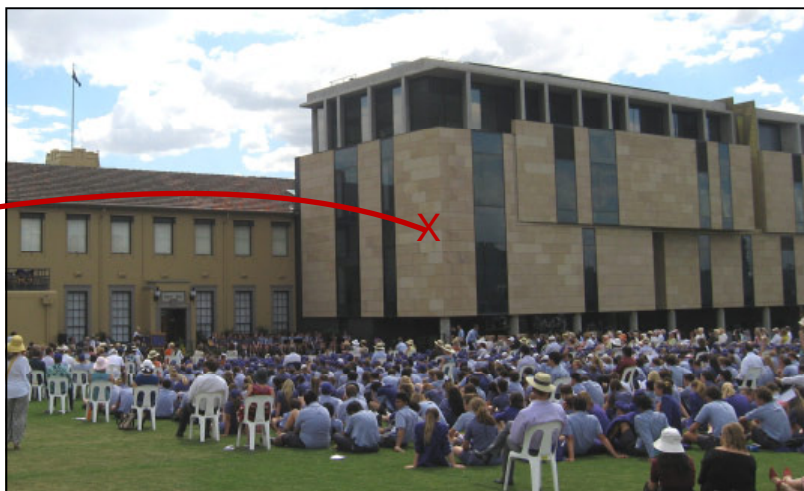

The day before the official opening of the new Music building, Hughy let loose with a real cracker of a drive that could have
